Theatre 308 will be reviving the '80s with their upcoming production of Footloose the Musical.

Based on the original screenplay by Dean Pitchford, Footloose premiered in 1988. It has been presented on London's West End and Broadway.

Now, 308 is bringing the iconic movie to the stage once again. Footloose is a feel-good musical about the importance of self-expression and individual freedom.

Ren McCormack (Nick Servas) is forced move from the vibrant city of Chicago to the quiet rural town of Bomont, Okla.

Ren finds himself in a tight knit community where dancing has been outlawed by the Reverend Shaw Moore (Jack Savage) after a devastating accident.

Five years after the ban, some, including the Reverend's daughter, Ariel (Lexi Staubi), are beginning to feel like they want to break free and "cut footloose." Footloose follows Ren's journey as he works to teach the people of Bomont that dancing is not a crime!
