On Friday, March 24, about 60 people attended a party given at a Blueberry Lane home by a resident there. Just before midnight on Monday, March 27, another resident told police that jewelry had been stolen from the home.

Police reported that the victim, 53, said a "cross style" necklace valued at $5,000 was missing, along with a second necklace, valued at $150. Both had been in a bedroom.

"There are no suspects at this time, but the incident remains under active investigation," a police news release said.
