Date : April 1, 2017

When should parents begin explaining reproduction, puberty, and sexual health to children? How can parents do so in a way that is informational yet developmentally appropriate?

Amanda Romaniello will help moms and dads prepare to have a frank discussion on "the birds and the bees" with their elementary school-age child.

Her presentation takes place from 10 a.m. to noon, Monday, April 3 in the Darien Library Conference Room. Register soon, because as of this posting, there are only four seats left.

This session is geared towards the parents of elementary school children. Parents of middle school-aged children should attend our session on Thursday, April 13th at 7 p.m.
