Darien High School has been selected as a 2019-2020 STEM School of Excellence by the International Technology & Engineering Association.

Darien High School is one of 10 schools worldwide receiving the award this year.

— an announcement from Darien High School, with additional information from the ITEEA website

ITEEA recognizes outstanding schools for their commitment to providing a robust Integrative STEM education program.

The award will be officially given to representatives of the DHS Technology and Engineering Department at the annual conference in Baltimore, Maryland in March of 2020.

According to the association's website:

"Award recipients will be recognized at the ITEEA International Conference in Baltimore in March, 2020 and will receive a banner and certificate for display in the school.

"STEM Schools of Excellence will be posted on ITEEA's website, be part of a post-conference press release, and are invited to take part in ITEEA's STEM Showcase on March 12, 2020. [...]

"ITEEA recognizes outstanding schools for their commitment to providing a robust Integrative STEM education program. Awards are made at two levels:

- ITEEA STEM School of Excellence (110+ points)
- ITEEA STEM School of Merit (85-105 points)"
