Featured menu items at their festival booth this weekend, located on the corner of Main Street and Post Road, will include shaved broccoli salad, scallop hand roll, creamy spicy tuna and cold sesame noodles.

Taibe and Kawa Ni are among a diverse and inspired culinary offering at this year's festival that includes Jeera Thai, Skinny Pines Wood Fired Catering, El Segundo and M.O.C. Eatery, a food truck offering locally sourced pub style sandwiches and salads.

Patrons may also enjoy refreshing cocktails sponsored by Pernod Ricard, beer from Brooklyn Brewery, and hand crafted watermelon lemonade sure to satisfy both children and adults.

This summer event attracts residents and art lovers from all over Connecticut and beyond. With over 170 artist booths making up the festival's expanded footprint, there is sure to be something for everyone.

“The Westport Fine Arts Festival is a premier event encompassing the best nationally recognized artists” said Sue Brown Gordon, the festival artist director. “The talent pool is extensive, and as a result of our efforts to scout shows all year long, all media categories are very well represented.”

In each of the eleven media categories, Westport Fine Arts Festival presents artists who are award winning examples of that genre. From contemporary to traditional, the common thread is outstanding execution of art form.

New this year is a focus on family art activities and the hands-on aspect of creating art. Several booths will allow guests of all ages to express themselves through many free, immersive art activities.

The Kids and Family Zone, centrally located in Brooks Corner Plaza, will provide free materials and instructor lead projects such as mask making by Jerry's Artarama, and an exciting variety of offerings from The Artist Collective of Westport that include Seashell Art and Make Your Own Logo.

There will also be freestyle expression with Chalk The Walk and Paint-A-Piano donated by the Suzuki Music School of Westport, alongside balloon art by Gault Family Companies and complimentary face painting.
