Jennifer was a beautiful woman. She had a brilliant mind with a creative, youthful and entrepreneurial spirit. In the '80s she was the first female hired as a commercial real estate broker in Fairfield County. Later she went on to found Global Data Services, an international data entry service company. However, Jennifer would attest that her most significant accomplishment was being a mother.

Jennifer met Lawrence H. Boothe of Westport, and the two were drawn together by a love of boating. They were married in 1997. They spent several years together in Fairfield County before moving up to Northwestern Connecticut in 2010 to be closer to family.

Jennifer is survived by her twin daughters: Lisa P. Haggerty of Tualatin, Oregon and Lora P. Cermola of Litchfield; and her beloved brother, Francis Wadsworth James Jr. (Jay) of New York City. She is predeceased by her second husband, Lawrence H. Boothe of Westport.

Her wonderful humor and words of wisdom will leave a void in our lives. Jennifer's legacy will undoubtedly live on, as she had a profound effect on our lives. Jennifer will be deeply missed by her family, her friends, and all that knew her.

Private services were held for family immediately following her passing. Interment will be private.
