On Tuesday, Oct. 9, a man with a shaved head, glasses, a blue shirt and khaki pants put a $200 Yeti brand cooler in a shopping cart and rolled it out of Whole Foods Supermarket without paying for it, police said.

Darien police gave this additional information about the incident, including accusations not proven in court:

At about 5:40 p.m., the man left the store, located at 150 Ledge Road. Several days later, by Sunday, Oct. 14, a store inventory showed the cooler was missing, and employees reviewed the surveillance images.

At 11:44 a.m. that day, the store informed police about the matter.

Police are continuing to investigate the incident.
