Paula Abdul takes the stage Nov. 30 at the the Wall Street Theater in Norwalk, and Blue Oyster Cult will play there on Halloween night.

Those are the most prominent entertainers in this fall's lineup of acts at the venue, an old theater that was refurbished and reopened a year ago.

Here's an excerpt of the announcement from the Wall Street Theater:

Having made her mark on the industry as a 90's pop icon with her signature dance moves and #1 hit songs including "Straight Up" from her multi-platinum record Forever Your Girl, Abdul continued a career path that would garner her two Emmy Awards, a Grammy, and an American Music Award.

In addition to her singer, songwriter, dancer, and choreographer hats, Abdul would go onto to entertain a whole new generation producing and starring in such ground breaking reality talent shows such as American Idol, Live to Dance, X-Factor, and So You Think You Can Dance.

In 2017, Abdul made her momentous return to touring with Live Nation's The Total Package Tour where she hit over 40 cities in the US alongside Boyz II Men and New Kids on the Block.

The arena tour sold over five hundred thousand tickets, grossing over forty million dollars. This fall, Abdul will headline her first solo tour in over 25+ years where she will hit over 26 cities in the US.
