When an argument between a man and woman got heated on Sunday night at a home in the northern end of town, they each pushed each other, with one being pushed on the ground, police said.

The Darien police announcement about the incident, which included accusations not proven in court, didn't mention any injuries. Police were called at 10:38 p.m.

Both the 53-year-old man and 49-year-old woman were charged with disorderly conduct. Each was issued a misdemeanor summons to appear Tuesday in state Superior Court in Bridgeport.
