A woman in a Darien Library private studying room at about 1:50 p.m., Saturday went to her car to get something, leaving a wallet in her purse in the room.

She had put her purse next to her seat. When she returned, she collected her belongings and moved to a different private study room, where she stayed until 4:20 p.m.

As she was leaving the library, she realized her wallet wasn't in the purse, and she couldn't find it. Inside the wallet was $140 in cash, her driver's license and several credit and gift cards.

She went to Police Headquarters to report the incident at 4:49 p.m. She never saw anyone or anything suspicious, she told police.
